

so would waive his claim to the estate, inasmuch as Sapene was a lunatic when he made his will.

But Alf did not do anything of the sort, doubtless having many ideas as to what he could do with $500,000 easy money. He demanded an inventory and asked that it be held in chancery pending the court's decision.

Of course, the subpoena wasn't served on his majesty in person. That would never do. But it was served on the poor gink who is Alfonso's official goat in such affairs.

TY COBB IS WILLING TO PLAY BALL FOR $1 A MINUTE

Tyrus Raymond Cobb, who wants $15,000 a year.

Mr. Cobb wants $15,000 a year for playing baseball. would make at least $1 a minute.

He plays about 125 games a season.

That would bring him $120 a game.

A game lasts two hours or less.

That means that Mr. Cobb

This is a story of Tyrus Raymond Cobb, frequently billed as the greatest player baseball has ever produced and always referred to as the most advertised player in the business. Frank
